Summer drought causes disaster status

The U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) has designated all 83 counties in Michigan as primary natural disaster areas for drought and excessive heat conditions which began in March and is ongoing.

"The federal designation will aid Michigan's farmers for crop losses due to the ongoing heat and drought conditions," said Gov. Rick Snyder. "This disaster designation ensures our farmers and producers have access to additional federal resources to overcome Mother Nature's challenges."

The counties designated by USDA as natural disaster or contiguous disaster areas means that qualified farm operators are eligible for low interest emergency (EM) loans from USDA's Farm Service Agency (FSA), provided eligibility requirements are met

"Although we are still determining the full extent of the damage, this year's extreme weather conditions have caused significant crop losses for Michigan's farmers," said Jamie Clover Adams, Michigan Department of Agriculture and Rural Development director. "Additionally, hay production has been impacted across the state which may greatly affect our livestock industry. This federal designation provides much needed aid to Michigan's farmers and producers to overcome the weather related challenges."

Farmers in eligible counties have eight months from the date of the declaration to apply for loans to help cover part of their actual losses.

Local monarch watch dog shares his enthusiasm and knowledge

By Mary Weber Staff Writer

Three years ago Frank Apsey, an avid birder, was searching through Websites when he came across a site called MonarchWatch.org.

Many times he had seen the delicate red winged monarch butterflies landing in gardens, fields and along the Lake Huron shore near his home in Harrisville. With curiosity peaked, Apsey delved into the website to find out more about the butterflies.

The information he attained astounded him and monarchs have become a passion for Frank and his wife, Marilyn, ever since.

The Apseys are now Monarch Watch Dogs. They have built a certified waystation garden in their yard just for the butterflies and have also had the Harrisville State Park certified as a waystation. The Apseys share their interest in the butterflies by holding an interactive tagging seminar on the grounds of the Harrisville State Park in late August.

Monarchs, although fragile looking and incapable of surviving freezing temperatures, are strong fliers. Each fall monarch butterflies migrate from eastern North America to Mexico where they spend the winter in the high elevation oyamel fir forests in the mountains of the Transvolcanic Range of central Mexico.

The oyamel trees are unique because they emit heat, creating an environment about five degrees warmer than the outside temperature. "That's important because the area is being illegally logged around the base of those mountains and cold air is going up there," Apsey said. "Hundreds of thousands of monarchs are dying from the cold. The monarchs that get in the center of the cluster stay warmer.

"During the winter the monarchs still fly out and get their food sources and drink, but sometimes it is so cold they can't fly after eating and will literally walk back and up the tree to get to their

HUNT makes marijuana trafficking arrest

By Cheryl Peterson Editor

A Greenbush man was arrested on multiple drug charges just before the holiday weekend.

Joseph Kukla, 56, was arrested Thursday, Aug. 30 and arraigned in 81st District Court on Friday, Aug. 31 on four counts of delivery and manufacture of marijuana, one count of possession of a firearm and one count of maintaining a drug house. A $10,000 10 percent cash surety bond was set at arraignment.

Kukla was arrested following an investigation by the Huron Undercover Narcotics Team (HUNT). A search warrant was executed at the suspect's residence where investigators allegedly found approximately one quarter pound of processed marijuana and several firearms, one which was loaded, according to HUNT.

According to Alcona County Prosecutor Thomas Weichel, Kukla did not have a medical marijuana card, and was therefore, not allowed to possess, sell or grow marijuana. He also has prior convictions for assault with a deadly weapon and second degree murder.

This is exactly the kind of activity and type of offender that we need HUNT to deal with," Weichel said. "This team is especially suited to conduct covert surveillance, make undercover purchases of drugs, draft and execute search warrants and take these kinds of offenders off of our streets. This investigation could not have been done without HUNT, and this suspect would still be free to endanger our community had they not done what we pay them to do. We need HUNT in Alcona County."

Conviction of one felony count of delivery or manufacture of marijuana carries a prison sentence of four years and or a $20,000 fine. Conviction of possession of a firearm, a felony, carries a five year prison term and or a $5,000 fine. Conviction of maintaining a drug house, a high court misdemeanor, carries a jail term of two years and or a fine of $25,000.

Kukla, who is free on bond, is set for a preliminary examination in 81st District Court on Wednesday, Sept. 12 at 11 a.m.

Letters to the Editor

To the Editor,

What is the point of voting on millages if the only outcome our county commissioners will accept is yes?

The August election was open to all voters. Even if people didn't want to vote for primary candidates, they could still vote on the millages. And they did.

They passed the senior citizen center and MSU Extension funding. They rejected the HUNT funding. But somehow the HUNT tax will be on the ballot again. Why don't those who opposed the senior and extension office millages get another chance to defeat them?

The answer seems clear. Our county commissioners believe we only have the right to pass taxes, not reject them. This is a slap in the face to our founding fathers who created a nation where voters have the right to decide. Why bother to vote if our votes don't count?

> Ernie and Judy Delgado Lincoln

To the Editor,

I attended the meeting where the county commissioners put the defeated HUNT millage back on the ballot for November. Both the HUNT commander and county prosecutor Weichel painted a picture of a county about to be overrun by drug dealers and gang violence. Only HUNT stood between us and the Flint-Saginaw-Pontiac thugs.

The subtext was clear. People of color are associated with drugs, and we don't want them. Sadly, this scare tactic was reinforced by a county commissioner who said she knew a break-in suspect was from downstate because "he stood out in the snow." Noticeably absent from the scare tactics were actual statistics.

Of course there are illegal drugs in the county, just like every county. But to keep crying "the sky is falling: As HUNT has done over the past 22 years, is just a fundraising

Professioanl Appointment

Thomas Weichel, Alcona County Prosecutor since 1993, was re-elected to the Board of Directors of the Prosecuting Attorneys Association of Michigan (PAAM). He will serve a one-year term through August 2013. "We are pleased to have Thomas Weichel as a member of the Board of Directors for PAAM." said newly elected PAAM President and Genesee County Prosecutor, David Leyton. "Tom's experience and distinguished service as prosecutor in Alcona County will be a valuable asset to us as we strive to improve the criminal justice system for all the citizens of Michigan and work together for safer communities across the state." Levton said.

"I'm honored to continue to serve the people of Alcona County and the state of Michigan. I am also humbled by the support of prosecutors all over this state," Weichel said. PAAM was established in 1929. It is a voluntary association of all 83 of the state's prosecuting attorneys, the attorney general, and the U.S.

attorneys serving in Michigan. Its primary purposes are to promote fair, swift and equal justice in enforcing the state's criminal laws, and the continuing education of prosecuting attorneys and other law enforcement officials.

Friends of Negwegon

The Friends of Negwegon State Park will hold a general membership meeting on Tuesday, Sept. 13 at 7 p.m. in the Alcona Township Hall on US-23, just north of Black River Road. The agenda for the meeting will be to elect officers and discuss the current and future activities of Friends of Negwegon State Park. The public is encouraged to participate and needed to help make a successful organization.

Known to most residents of Alcona and Alpena counties for its 40,000 feet of pristine shoreline and 10 miles of wilderness hiking trails, Negwegon State Park remains a secluded and remote remnant of the 19th century Michigan forest. The group's mission is "to preserve, protect and promote Negwegon State Park." The organization hopes to accomplish their mission through a variety of means: Promoting stewardship through education programs; preserving natural and historical features through research; protecting park interest by collaborating with other parks and agencies.

Kyle Butler, son of former Alcona County resident Karen (Ghiata) and Tom Butler of Shepherd, Mich. won the $10,000 Art Walk Central juried prize in Mt. Pleasant, Mich. Butler, a graduate of Shepherd High School and Central Michigan University, used a half-circle wooden platform to build a miniature city using tiny pieces of scrap lumber. He is the grandson of Norman and Hilda Ghiata of Hubbard Lake.

Youth Drama Auditions

The Shoreline Players Youth Drama Association (SPYDA) will hold auditions for its fall production "Camp Twilight." This camp promises teens a summer adventure — and it delivers. There's a werewolf howling at the moon, and he's a camp counselor. The newest camper appears to be a vampire and the camp's pesky bats are really his mom and dad, who are trying to bring him home. A pair of loony hit ladies show up to settle a score and as midnight approaches under a full moon, the adventures come to a howling culmina-

Auditions will be held Thursday, Sept. 6 and Friday, Sept. 7 at 7 p.m. at the Shoreline Players Theater. There are 22 roles, 13 female and nine male, open to students in grades seven through twelfth with performances scheduled for October 19, 20 and 21. Crew members of all ages are also needed to work group to stay warm. The ones that freeze don't make it," Apsey said.

To demonstrate the tagging process the Apseys set up a small netted tent, called a butterfly condo. Caterpillars Apsey has collected off milkweed plants around the end of July are placed in the safety of the condo tent until they are ready to be tagged.

"It's important to break off part of the milkweed plant to put in the tent with the caterpillars," he said. "Milkweed is their host plant and main food source. Each day new fresh milkweed is added to the tent until the caterpillars are ready to form their chrysalis.

"The metamorphous process from caterpillar into chrysalis only takes a minute or two and is fascinating to watch," Apsey said. "They remain in chrysalis state for 10 to 20 days depending on the temperature -- the warmer the temperature, the faster they develop."

Once the butterfly emerges from the chrysalis it takes about four hours for their wings to unfurl and dry. When they are completely dry, Apsey applies a tag supplied by MonarchWatch.org to the upper inside of the wing. The tag has all the information needed so when it is collected, typically when they die after reproduction in Mexico, the information gathered is put into a database.

The founder of the Monarch Watch, Dr. Orley "Chip" Taylor became interested in the butterflies in 1972 when he saw the butterflies gathered in great big cones in the oyamel trees in the mountains of Mexico. Taylor wanted to know where the monarchs were coming from and where they were going so he began the tagging program in 1992. The database now has over 16,000 entries.

The tags are sticky, small circles, about the circumference of a pencil eraser. Late August to mid-September is the best time for tagging butterflies in Alcona County. Depending on weather conditions, the monarchs flying down from upper Michigan and Canada will stop to rest and collect nectar along the lakeshore to re-fuel their energy until their next stop.

"If you hit it just right, sometimes you can count 50 to 700 monarchs an hour along the Lake Huron beach near the Harrisville State Park between the eighth and fifteenth of September," Apsey Apsey has tagged over 200 butterflies since he became fascinated with the bright red butterflies three years ago. Some of the butterflies tagged have come from the caterpillars he placed in his butterfly condo tent, others he collected with butterfly nets and tagged just walking along the beach.

"The butterflies do tend to follow shorelines. Some will go down Lake Michigan and some will come down Lake Huron out of Canada. They will cross the water. We know this because boaters have been 20 miles out on the lakes and the butterflies will stop and take a rest on their boats," Apsey said.

Monarchs take a directional flight, they will follow where the sun is towards the evening so whatever the barrier, unless it's really high mountains the monarchs will cross it to get to Mexico. "It doesn't take them long to make it to Mexico, they can reach their winter home in about six weeks," Apsey said.

The furthest tagged monarch on record traveled from Canada traveling 2,880 miles to reach its winter home in Mexico. From Harrisville the butterflies travel approximately 1,850 to 2,045 miles to their winter home.

No butterflies that Apsey has tagged have been recorded in Mexico. "There is only a one in 2,500 chance of finding a tagged butterfly," Apsey said.

"They expect about 150,000,000 monarchs to return to Mexico this year. That number has decreased significantly since their peak of about ten billion butterflies 40 years ago," Apsey said. "Logging and pesticides have reduced the numbers. They thought the monarch would be extinct by 2010, but they are holding their own due to conservation efforts.

Migratory monarchs that survive winter in Mexico are eight to nine months of age and may be the longest lived of all butterflies. Reproductive monarchs moving north during the spring and summer months only live two to five weeks, perhaps due to the high cost of reproduction while traveling north.

Michigan butterflies making their journey back down to Mexico are most likely the fourth or possibly even the fifth generation of the monarchs that first left Mexico in the spring.

"No one really knows why the monarchs are short lived on their journey north but can live for nine months during and after their journey south. The mystery is how do the great, great, great grandchildren of the monarchs leaving Mexico know to find those trees down in Mexico? They've never been there but it's all genetically imprinted on them," Apsey said.

During Apsey's informal seminar he allows each guest to feel the strength of the butterflies' feet and legs on their fingers while he gently holds its wings together. The butterfly is then tagged by one of the children.

"Sometimes the tagged butterfly will sit on a finger or a flower before it flies off, other times it takes off after tagging flying high into a tree to rest a bit before making its journey," Apsey said as he gently set a butterfly onto the finger of nine-year-old Lydia Crane from Ann Arbor, Mich.

"All the information on how to get started tagging monarchs can be found at www.MonarchWatch.org. The organization will send you information about the monarchs, how to tell the difference between a male and female monarch, how to apply the tag correctly and a newsletter," Apsey said.

FSA will consider each loan application on its own merits, taking into account the extent of losses, security available and repayment ability. FSA has a variety of programs, in addition to the EM loan program, to help eligible farmers recover from adversity.

In order for Michigan to receive federal disaster status, the original crop loss estimates must be verified from harvest yield data. If losses of 30 percent or more are confirmed, and the disaster request is granted, eligible state producers will have access to USDA-FSA's low-interest emergency loan program for up to 100 percent of their weather-related agriculture production losses.

USDA-FSA is the agency responsible for compiling the official crop loss statistics and administering the federal emergency farm loan programs.

For more information on the federal emergency farm loan programs, please visit the USDA-FSA Website at http://www.fsa.usda.gov.

Alcona's 2012-13 school year begins this week

By Dan O'Connor

Guest Columnist As the first week of school begins, the Alcona staff will begin their school year on Tuesday, Sept. 4 and Wednesday, Sept. 5 with professional development. These two days will be packed with training and time based around curriculum updates (transition to the Common Core State Standards) and Standards Based Learning. The first day of school will occur on Thursday, Sept. 6 for students. Take extra care in town or on the roads watching for busses and children at bus stops.

Modern Craft Winery hosts open house

The Harrisville tasting room for Modern Craft Winery is having a grand opening on September 8. The event will run from noon until 8 p.m. Food, desserts and refreshments will be offered in addition to complimentary wine samples.

The Harrisville location is an extension of the winery located in AuGres, Mich., where the wines are made.

The Harrisville tasting room, which opened its doors on June 1, is managed by Venita Larson. Her husband, Mark, was hired by Modern Craft Winery to help expand business.

A wide variety of grape and fruit wines are available at the tasting room. Michigan products are used to produce the wines as much as possible with most of the fruit coming from Michigan. The maple wines use maple syrup from Tawas. A new release, Autumn Hearth, features this northeast Michigan maple

Paying for nursing home care with Medicaid

What are the eligibility requirements to get Medicaid coverage for nursing home care?

Looking Ahead

Dear Looking,

The rules and requirements for Medicaid eligibility for nursing home care are somewhat complicated and will vary according to the state you live in. With that said, here's a general, simplified rundown of what it takes to qualify, along with some resources you can turn to for help.

Medicaid, the federal and state joint program that covers health care for the poor, is also the largest single payer of America's nursing home bills for seniors who don't have the resources to pay for their own care.

Most people who enter nursing homes don't qualify for Medicaid at first, but pay for care either through longterm care insurance or outof-pocket until they deplete their savings and become eligible for Medicaid.

To qualify for Medicaid, your income and assets will need to be under a certain level that's determined by your state. Most states require that a person have no more than about $2,000 in countable assets that includes cash, savings, investments or other financial resources that can be turned into cash.

Assets that aren't counted for eligibility include your home if it's valued under $525,000 (this limit is higher - up to $786,000 - in some states), your personal possessions and household goods, one vehicle, prepaid funeral plans and a small amount of life insurance.

But be aware that while your home is not considered a countable asset to determine your eligibility, if you can't return to your home, Medicaid can go after the proceeds of your house to help home costs, unless your spouse or other dependent relative lives there. (There are some other exceptions to this

After qualifying, all sources of your income such as Social Security and pension checks must be turned over to Medicaid to pay for your care, except for a small personal needs allowance usually between $30 and

You also need to be aware that you can't give away your assets to qualify for Medicaid faster. Medicaid officials will look at your financial records going back five years to root out suspicious asset transfers. If they find one, your Medicaid coverage will be delayed a certain length of time, according to a formula that divides the transfer amount by the average monthly cost of nursing home care in your state.

So if, for example, you live in a state where the average reimburse your nursing monthly nursing home cost is $5,000 and you gave away cash or other assets worth $100,000, you would be ineligible for benefits for 20 months ($100,000 divided by $5,000 equals 20).

Medicaid also has special rules for married couples when one spouse enters a nursing home and the other spouse remains at home. In these cases, the healthy spouse can keep one half of the couple's assets up to $113,640 (this amount varies by state), the family home, all the furniture and household goods and one automobile. The healthy spouse is also entitled to keep a portion of the couple's monthly income - between $1,838 and $2,841. Any income above that goes toward the cost of the nursing home recipient's

Medicare, the federal health insurance program for seniors 65 and older and some younger people with disabilities, does not pay for long-term care. It only helps pay up to 100 days of "rehabilitative" nursing home care, which must occur after a hospital stay.

Again, Medicaid rules are complicated and vary by state, so contact the local Medicaid office (call (800) 633-4227 for contact information) for eligibility details.

You can also get help from your State Health Insurance Assistance Program (SHIP), which provides free counseling on all Medicare and Medicaid issues. To find a local SHIP counselor visit shiptalk.org, or call (800) 677-1116.

Wearing addressed the audience, "What a beautiful thing it is to hear all the great voices and young kids that are carrying on the barbershop tradition. It's good stuff... the people here are just fantastic and wonderful and I'm glad to be here." During the performance at both the Greenbush Golf Course and the Harrisville Harbor collections were taken for Young Women in Harmony and the Young Sisters Foundation. The groups hold a harmony youth camp in Davison, Mich for both male and female singers ages11 to 25. During the camp young singers learn harmony from seasoned quartets and perform at an evening concert. This year's donations will go for scholarship to the camp in memory of Anne Kotchman a music teacher and Sweet Adeline who was killed in an automobile accident. "We want the youth to come to camp whether they can afford it or not. We want to keep young people involved with harmony singing. Many (who attend the camp are) students from the Hale and Oscoda area and we'd like to see more," said Jill Kienitz of Grand Blanc, Mich. The next harmony youth camp will be held June 22, 2013. The festival is beyond wonderful and I can't wait to come back next year," Crispin said. Photos by Wil Weber.

One of the youngest quartets to perform Saturday night was the Slip and Slide Girls. (From left) sisters, Michaela, Madison and Mackenzie Slamka came from Florida to perform with their cousin, Holly Slamka, from Hillsdale, Mich. The girls' fathers and brothers also sang barbershop with a quartet called Family Forum during Saturday night's performance. Mike Slamka won the award for traveling the longest distance from Fort Meyers, Fla.

Relatively Speaking, a husband and wife quartet, consisting of (left to right) Sally Burns, Bruce Lamarte, Pete Burns and Dodie Lamarte. During the performance, quartet members explained that Dodie had heard about Harmony Weekend in 1983 so she bought a 1969 camper for $650 so they could attend. Unfortunately, she didn't realize their car couldn't pull the camper so they had to purchase a $10,000 vehicle with a $700 trailer hitch. The Lamartes have a cottage five miles north of Harrisville.

The general monthly meeting of the East Shore Art Guild on August 14 began with Bernie Blaszak welcoming everyone and thanking all of the artists that helped at the Summer Impromptu and the wine and food festivals.

Rose Blaszak read the minutes from the June 12 general monthly meeting. Minutes were first and seconded and approved. Judy St. John gave the treasurer's report. First and seconded and approved.

Terry Lipscomb gave her report about the Spring I.C.E. Program as well as the Summer I.C.P. Program. The children at the Alcona Elementary enjoyed the program and accomplished a lot. Their art work was displayed at the Summer Impromptu VI and the wine and food shows. It was also displayed at the Alcona County Fair. They were awarded first, second and third places.

The summer program had 10 children participating and their work was also displayed and judged at the Alcona County Fair. We were told that the Kids Art Program has secured its first grant for the I.C.E. Program.

Discussions about the Summer Impromptu and wine and food programs for 2013: It was brought up to change the hours to 3 to 7 p.m. More people come for dinner and the concert and then look at our artwork after dinner and before the concert. It was voted on and approved.

The Sunriseside Wine & Food Festival will be discussed at a later meeting. Discussion on the Alcona Arts Retreat; September 6-9. Christmas in the Village –

December 1. Discussion about the general meetings and keeping them every other month. It was decided to stay the way they are at the present, every other month. September is the beginning of the year, August and September dues are collected; 2013 will be the year new officers will be installed.

Open discussions: Art

Fair daze and ducks

By Mary Weber Columnist

When growing up downstate in the early 1960s our two story Ferndale, Mich. home was almost in direct line to the north entrance of the Michigan State Fair grounds located on Eight Mile in Detroit, Mich.

The State Fair no longer exists, but some of my very first memories were the sounds of laughter, long plastic horns bellowing a loud, bleating noise, and people talking as they walked to cars that lined our street -- so they didn't have to pay extra for parking.

I heard these sounds mostly at night lofting through the screen window in my room well after my bedtime. These annual summer noises joyously kept me awake for hours. If I listened very carefully with my ear pressed against the screen, I could even hear the faint sound of music and screams from thrill rides in the dis-

Then the day would come when it would be my turn to enjoy the sights, sounds and smells of the fair. I went every year as a youngster, the kiddy rides would always thrill and I was always allowed to get a souvenir. I couldn't resist getting one of those plastic horns even though I barely had the lung capacity to make the thing do even a short squeak.

Occasionally, we'd take a quick walk through the chicken, turkey and rabbit houses. Mother didn't much like animals, but usually one of my older siblings would walk me through the horse, cow and pig barns. To this day, the smell of wet hay brings back vivid memories of holding a comforting hand while strolling through the fair.

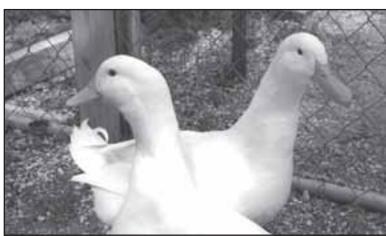

The one animal exhibit my mother did tolerate was the duck pond. I'd watch the ducks splash and play in a shallow pond while I ate cotton candy or some other sweet sticky treat I was normally not allowed to eat. The ducks always seemed to be such happy creatures, quacking and playing in the water, floating on the water's surface with ease and grace. My favorites were always the white ducks.

Alcona's Backyard

I accepted my friend's interest in the animals. They were happy and I was just happy to be with them.

Then, on the last night of the fair, they took me to something called a "bump and run." I had no idea what a bump and run was, but always willing to experience something new, I went eagerly.

As the loud, un-muffled, banged and bruised cars swerved through the mud, something inside me stirred.

As I got older, the State Fair changed somehow. The rides were not as thrilling, the hay in the barns didn't smell as sweet, and even the ducks didn't really hold much interest.

At that time in my life, I assumed my fair days were over until I received an invitation to visit the Scherrer family "up north." It was my first experience being in the country away from cement lined streets of the city. I'm not sure how I did it, but my timing was perfect to arrive at their front door just as the Clare County Fair was about to start.

At first I didn't really understand my friend's exuberant excitement over this small fair. Okay, there were a few rides that seemed kind of fun and the people were certainly friendly enough. The Scherrer family had horses, so of course we had to visit every animal in every cage and stall.

Suddenly, I found myself cheering them on to go faster and then waiting anxiously to see if the driver in the rolled over car was okay. Tractors with forklifts carried off the beaten vehicles while we cheered for the drivers who walked away without a scratch. From that moment on I was hooked on small county fairs.

For the last several years the Alcona County Fair has always been a delightful afternoon or evening for the Weber household, but it wasn't until this year did I fully understand the amount of work and effort that goes in to putting on a county fair.

As the new staff writer for the Review it was my job recently to write articles about the upcoming fair activities. I talked to each fair board member and many 4-H leaders and their families to make sure I had every detail of the

NASCAR REPORT

Casey Mears runs out front

NASCAR This Week

By Monte Dutton

Casey Mears got quite a boost from the circumstances surrounding the Irwin Tools Night Race.

He started on the pole. He didn't win the pole, but he started there. It wasn't just luck, though. When rain canceled qualifying, Mears advanced to the top of the lineup because his Ford had been fastest in practice.

The Bristol Motor Speedway surface had been reworked since the Sprint Cup Series last visited in March

"Where they actually worked on the track (it had been ground near the tops of the turns), we actually haven't been all the way up there yet," Mears said before the race. "I've seen some guys flirting with the edge of it, so it's really going to be hard to say. If it keeps guys from running up against the wall, I think it could make it a little bit more competitive just because, when guys are running right up against the fence, it's really hard to pass guys down underneath.7

Many didn't expect Mears, 34, to remain at the front for long. Some didn't expect him to lead the first lap, but he did. In fact, Mears' No. 13 Geico Ford, owned by Steve Germain, led the first 26 laps. He wound up finishing 21st after spinning on the 414th of 500 laps.

Mears had an impact on the race. He was running 12th as late as lap 375.

The Bakersfield, Calif., native was right about it being difficult to pass high. What he and others didn't fully grasp was that it would also be difficult to pass low.

While competing at Hendrick Motorsports, Mears won the Coca-Cola 600 at Charlotte Motor Speedway in May 2007. He began his career with Chip Ganassi's team, finishing a career-best 14th in the Sprint Cup point standings in 2006. He then spent two years at Hendrick and moved to Richard Childress Racing for the 2009 season. Since then, Mears has driven for Germain, Team Red Bull, Tommy Baldwin Jr. and Raymond Key.

Mears comes from one of America's great racing families. His uncle, Rick, is one of three men to win the Indianapolis 500 four times. His father, Roger, is a legend in off-road racing, which is where Casey began his ca-

Professional Recognition

Howard Spencer, chairman of Northland Area Federal Credit Union's Board of Directors, has been named board chairman for the Michigan Credit Union League (MCUL). Spencer accepted his new post during the MCUL Annual Meeting, held in Traverse City, Mich. recently. "The MCUL made an excellent choice. Howard has an unwavering belief in the credit union cause and its ability to help hard-hit communities rebuild. He is a tremendous advocate for the people of Michigan," said Northland CEO Pete Dzuris.

Howard Spencer

After a 22-year career in the U.S. Air Force, Spencer (CMSgt. E9, Ret.) is no stranger to hard work for a collective purpose. Originally from Texas, he was eventually stationed to Oscoda's former Wurtsmith Air Force Base, where he spent 17 years as director of educational services. There he discovered that his commitment to helping people better themselves was a natural fit for credit union philosophy: "Not for profit, not for charity, but for service." Retirement from the military led to numerous opportunities with local, state and national community service organizations.

Spencer's history of community involvement includes Oscoda's United Way and Lions Clubs, among others. He taught classes in math, drug education and adult GED preparation for a number of community education programs, and courses in business management for Alpena Community College. Other personal achievements include a previous appointment as board chairman for the National Association of Credit Union Chairmen and inclusion in the MCUL Hall of Fame.

the vast amount of time and energy that was exerted to make the fair come alive. I walked away from the interviews with a totally new perspective.

Layla Carrivieu came into the Review office a few days before the fair to tell me about her market sale animals. I had learned while interviewing 4-H families what kinds of questions to ask her about the pheasants, chickens, and ducks she was offering. I grilled Layla pretty well on all aspects of raising her animals. She answered every question and was patient with me when I asked some questions twice.

Later that evening I told my husband about her and said, "It might be nice to support the kid's hard work and go to the market sale this year. A duck or a pheasant couldn't cost that much."

With my always supportive husband at my side and fair covered. I was amazed by his willingness to capture just the right photo, it was thrilling to stand right next to the fence while massively large draft horses heaved forward closer and closer to us, feeling every heavy beat of each step as they took their turn pulling the weight sleds.

> We made a concerted effort to talk to the entertainers and demonstrators, each unique and interesting and more than happy to chat about their passions. We laughed at old, but clean jokes, during the timber show and could feel the pride of children swell as the Cirque Amongus professionals taught them to stand on a round wood ball or make a human pyramid with two ladders.

> Holding hands my husband and I walked through the barns. "Oh my," I said as I approached a pen of four lovely white ducks, "Those are Layla's ducks. They're really beautiful, except for the one odd looking duck with the crooked beak. Actually, his tilted lopsided look almost makes him cuter somehow, way too cute to eat. Maybe we'll bid on a pheasant or something else of Layla's at the market sale tomorrow. I like duck, but I couldn't eat one now that I've seen them."

The next morning, I couldn't get the white ducks off my mind. I wondered how I could convince my husband to purchase a pet duck. To my surprised delight the thought of a pet duck didn't even ruffle a single feather with my dear Wil. Before he even agreed to the idea, he was already conjuring up ideas of how he could move our huge, but never used, walk-in dog house over a bit closer to our pond and set up a pen so the dogs could see the duck to protect it, but not

We were pretty excited when we got to the market sale and saw Layla. We quickly explained we wanted to purchase a duck for a pet, not to eat. She told us that she could only sell two of the four at the market sale, but the duck with the crooked bill and slightly gimpy walk (yes, a lame duck) and his brother would be available to purchase as pets after the sale. I guess two ducks are better than one; everyone needs a pal to hang around with. "We'd better get them both," I said to Wil who was already beginning to rethink the whole idea. I talked to Lavla's folks about our plans to make a side deal on the two extra ducks. We were aware of the girl's hard work in raising the ducks and would wait to see what her other ducks went for in sale before making a deal that would benefit her and not break our retirement income.

When her ducks sold for $85 each in the market sale,

Sept. 5, 2012

I thought my poor Wil was going to have a stroke then and there. Luckily, Layla and her folks were receptive to our offer for both ducks and a bag of feed. The ducks would be delivered to our house the day after the fair ended.

We began querying our friends on what we should call our new pet ducks. A lot of great names came pouring in: Donald and Daffy, well the lame duck with the crooked bill was certainly Daffy. Yin and Yang were pretty good names, they were after all, Peking ducks. Daryl and my other brother Daryl were front runner names until I had to explain to too many 20 year olds about a comedy called the Bob Newhart Show (man did I feel old explaining

Kay Kniep offered a few good names including Cheese and Quackers, which was cute and clever. Thing One and Thing Two were among Willy's choices and, of course, we could have named them Glennie and Curtis, continuing our Alcona County township names along with our dogs, Mikado, Lincoln and Gustin.

Before we knew it the last day of the fair had arrived. We were excited as little kids when we went to bed that night -- the next morning the ducks would be delivered. We couldn't wait, but we still hadn't decided for sure on their names.

Our three dogs were extremely anxious to meet their new feathered friends. Just as the last bit of fencing was tightened and the ducks were safe and secure inside the pen, our large dogs rushed up to the fence. As the dogs gazed drooling at the sight of two plump ducks it occurred to me the dogs had named the ducks, Lunch and Supper. "Let's hope that fence holds," Wil said with a grin.

It's been a week now and Lunch and Supper seem to be fitting in at the Weber Mosquito Farm quite nicely. The dogs have gotten used to them and rarely give them a bark. The ducks don't seem to mind the dogs at all. In fact, the ducks seem downright curious about the dogs, but I'm pretty sure Lunch and Supper would definitely like us to rethink their names.

I can't wait for next year's tair. I wonder how Wil would feel about a pet cow.

(Mary Weber, born and raised in the suburbs of Detroit, moved to Alcona County in 2005 with her husband, Willy, when he retired. Life in the north woods, away from city life, presents new experiences with nature on a daily basis...and they love every minute of it!)

StarWatch By Gary Becker - Moon to Occult Ceres

When the Italian astronomer Giuseppe Piazzi discovered Ceres on January 1, 1801, he thought that he had revealed one of the "missing links" of the solar system. Nearly thirty years earlier, two German astronomers, Johann Bode and Johann Titius had independently formulated a numerical progression which explained accurately the distances of the known planets at that time. There was a catch. The Bode-Titius rule put an unknown planet in a position 2.8 times the Earth-sun distance, but that was exactly where Ceres was discovered. Twenty years earlier, William Herschel found Uranus which was also foreseen by the rule. In the end, Neptune deviated from a Bode-Titius prediction, as did Ceres, the first of nearly a million objects discovered to date which are now called asteroids. These findings helped to discredit the Bode-Titius rule among professional astronomers. Texas-sized Ceres has also has been reclassified as a dwarf planet. It does, however, meet three out of the four characteristics for planetary status. It is round, orbits the sun, and is not a satellite of another planet; but unlike the planets, it does not possess enough mass, and therefore, not enough gravity to clear its orbital space. If you want to see a Ceres, set your sights on Sunday morning, September 9, when a thick waning crescent moon occults, or hides, the dwarf planet. A small telescope will be mandatory in order to view the Ceres occultation successfully. On the East Coast the event occurs about 4:20 a.m., but on the West Coast, subtract the three hour time change, and also an additional 30 minutes for the positional difference of the moon. That would make the time when Ceres vanishes behind the moon about 12:50 a.m. It would still be wise to set up about half an hour before the event to monitor the slow, inexorable movement of Luna's bright limb nearing Ceres. Much success! www.astronomy.org

STRANGE BUT TRUE by Samantha Weaver

- It was American singer Josh Groban who made the following sage observation: "There's no half-singing in the shower, you're either a rock star or an opera diva."
- If you're considering having a child sometime in the near future, you might want to consider this: It's said that the cost of caring for a newborn during its first year of life is more than $6,000.
- In 1986, actor and director Clint Eastwood took on a new and unfamiliar role: political candidate. He ran for mayor of Carmel, Calif. He defeated the incumbent mayor in a landslide, and he kept the position for two years. His salary? A whopping $200 per week.
- Often these days you'll see someone carrying a tiny dog around with them, but you might be surprised to learn that this is not an entirely new fashion. In ancient Rome and Greece it was not uncommon for a noble lady to carry her tiny Maltese dog around in the sleeve of her robe
- In the early days of motion pictures, Will H. Hays became known as the "Czar of Hollywood." He presided over the earliest incarnation of the MPAA, charged with ensuring the morality of movies. Some of the changes the so-called "Hays Office" insisted upon were removing the image of a cow's udder from a Walt Disney cartoon; and removing any direct reference to adultery in the 1935 adaptation of the Tolstoy novel "Anna Karenina" despite the fact that Anna's affair is at the heart of the novel.
- Those who study such things say that a woman's sense of smell tends to be better than that of a man.

Thought for the Day: "I think that I am better than the people who are trying to reform me." — Johann Wolfgang von Goethe

MOMENTS IN TIME The History Channel

- On Sept. 22, 1776, in New York City, 21-year-old Nathan Hale, a captain in the Continental Army, is executed by the British for spying. Before being hanged, legend holds that Hale said, "I only regret that I have but one life to lose for my country." There is no historical record to prove that Hale actually made this statement.
- On Sept. 18, 1793, George Washington lays the cornerstone to the United States Capitol building. The building would take nearly a century to complete, as architects came and went, the British set fire to it, and it was called into use during the Civil War.
- On Sept. 23, 1846, German astronomer Johann Gottfried Galle discovers the planet Neptune. The blue gas giant, which has a diameter four times that of Earth, has eight known moons and a ring system containing three bright and two dim rings.
- On Sept. 21, 1938, a powerful Category 3 hurricane slams into Long Island and southern New England. Charlie Pierce, a junior forecaster in the U.S. Weather Bureau, was sure that the hurricane was heading for the Northeast, but the chief forecaster overruled him. All told, 700 people were killed by the hurricane.
- On Sept. 19, 1959, in one of the more surreal moments in the history of the Cold War, Soviet leader Nikita Khrushchev explodes with anger when he learns he cannot visit Disneyland. Government authorities feared that the crowds would pose a safety hazard.
- On Sept. 17, 1965, four adventurous Englishmen arrive at a motor show in Germany after crossing the English Channel by Amphicar, the world's only mass-produced amphibious passenger car. On land, the cars used a four-speed-plus-reverse manual transmission. In the water, they used a transfer case that had two speeds: forward and backward.
- On Sept. 20, 1973, in a highly publicized "Battle of the Sexes" tennis match, top women's player Billie Jean King, 29, plays Bobby Riggs, 55, a former No. 1-ranked men's player. Riggs, a self-proclaimed male chauvinist, had boasted that women were inferior. King beat Riggs 6-4, 6-3, 6-3.
