Forgotten Eagles ride to remember veterans

By Mary Weber
Staff Writer

Alcona County will once again feel the thunder as Eagles descend upon it, just as it has for the last 10 years.

The Eagles are the Chapter 3 Forgotten Eagles of Michigan, a group motorcycling through northeast Michigan to raise awareness and funds for United States veterans.

In addition to assisting veterans who are disabled and in need, the Eagles also promote physical and cultural improvements of veterans and their families, participate in community projects benefiting veterans and heightening awareness and advocating for prisoner of war

(POW) and missing in action (MIA) veterans.

Mike Ditulio, president of Forgotten Eagles Chapter 3, said there will be around 60 motorcycles involved in the annual three day event. The group will make overnight stops in Hale, Atlanta and Houghton Lake.

On Thursday, Aug. 7, during the three day ride, the Forgotten Eagles will be stopping in Oscoda at 11 a.m. to have lunch at the Veterans of Foreign Wars Chapter Post No. 3735 and then proceed to Harrisville to have a remembrance ceremony on the court house lawn around 12:30 p.m.

History comes alive for a day at Sturgeon Point Lighthouse

By Carlee Campbell
Staff Writer

Step into the past and experience life in the late 19th and early 20th centuries during Historical Day at Sturgeon Point Lighthouse on Saturday, Aug. 9.

With good weather, Linda Klemens, president of the Alcona County Historical Society, said she expects "hundreds of visitors." With music, games, tours and guest speakers there will be activities for all ages from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m.

People and families from around the world regularly visit Sturgeon Point Lighthouse while touring the shores of the Great Lakes. Just a few weeks ago, a family from the Netherlands and Italy signed the ledger inside the gift shop. Likewise, visitors from the northwestern part of the United States also make frequent stops during vacations to Michigan.

Roughly between 30,000 and 40,000 people visit the lighthouse each year, according to Klemens. In keeping up with the amount of visitors and to continue the interest, new attractions are added to the event each year. This year, Smokey Bear will give a presentation and free horse drawn carriage rides will be given around the property.

While climbing the lighthouse tower, searching for rocks, playing games and enjoying the outdoors, children will be able to get a glimpse of life back in the 1800s and the 1940s during wartime.

The Sturgeon Point Lighthouse was built in 1869 as a way to help ships navigate across Lake Huron and around rocky Sturgeon Point. In 1876 a U.S. Lifesaving Station was built on the grounds. Eventually, the lighthouse service and the lifesaving service combined under the U.S. Coast Guard. The station was closed in 1941.

The light remained active as a navigational aide after the service was decommissioned. Many years of being unoccupied led to vandalism and theft of original pieces such as the furniture, many of the doors on the main floor, most of the light fixtures as well as the original stairs leading to the second floor.

Floyd C. Benghauser, a local resident, had watched as the lighthouse fell into disarray over the years. Benghauser and the Alcona Historical Society took over the property and attempted to generate interest in the lighthouse, raising money to repair it and reopen it to the public in 1982.

According to Klemens, by a stroke of genuine charity and luck, many of the original pieces of furniture and other small treasures found within the lighthouse were returned thanks to articles about the restoration in newspapers.

Now a maritime museum run by volunteers, the museum is open all summer and on weekends through Labor Day. It is open on weekends only until the Lighthouse Fest

Letter to the Editor

To the Editor,
I've been amused by recent letters attacking my stand against the Christian Coalition from people who call themselves "evangelical" Christians, because they are not. Evangelical Christianity arose in 19th century America in response to social injustices that plagued society. In the Second Great Awakening, as church historians call it, evangelical Christians fought for the abolition of slavery, equal rights for women, including the right to vote, and support for public schools, as a place where, as the Christian Spectator wrote, "even the beggar's child is taught to read, write, and think, for himself."

The evangelical preference for the poor criticized usury (charging interest), and questioned the morality of capitalists because the pursuit of wealth tended to elevate avarice over altruism. Evangelical leader Elias Smith believed Jesus Christ "came to put an end to unjust inequality in the world."

Those who attacked me under the banner of evangelical Christianity are in fact fundamentalists, a religious phenomenon with roots in the early 1900s. An example of their early activity is the Scopes trial of 1925 where a science teacher was arrested for teaching the theory of evolution. In the 1970s and '80s, fundamentalists moved into the political arena with the formation of the Moral Majority and the Christian Coalition.

My late father, the Rev. Dr. L. J. Peterson, called fundamentalists the "American Taliban" because if they gained power they would impose their fundamentalist Christianized version of "sharia" law. I believe he was right, as many fundamentalist groups constantly seek to legislate their pietistic morality on society as a whole. While they have the right to believe what they believe, I will not stand idly by as they seek to return women to second-class citizenship and deny basic civil rights to LGBT people. Social justice is the heart of true evangelical Christianity.

Artist in Residence

The Alpena Wildlife Sanctuary has selected print-maker Gail D. Panske as its 2014 artist in residence. Panske will conduct research in the sanctuary from August 5 to August 18. Using that research, she will create a work of art that will become part of the sanctuary's permanent collection.

A distinguished professor of art at the University of Wisconsin, Oshkosh, Panske's work has been extensively exhibited in the United States and internationally in Bulgaria, Estonia, Norway and Denmark. She has participated in a number of artist-in-residence programs, including the Frans Masereel Centrum in Belgium and the prestigious Bush Creek Foundation for the Arts residency in Wyoming.

Panske will give an artist talk on Tuesday, Aug. 12 at 7 p.m. at the Alpena County George N. Fletcher Public Library, with a reception will follow. The event is free and open to the public.

This is the fourth year of the residency program which began in 2011. The goal of the residency is to develop a museum-quality collection of freshwater-themed art that will be held by the Alpena Wildlife Sanctuary. These works are temporarily on display at the Alpena County George N. Fletcher Public Library, 211 N. First Ave., Alpena.

Forestry Grant Applications

Applications for the 2014 Community Forestry Grants program are available from the Michigan Department of Natural Resources (DNR). The applications to request support for urban and community forestry activities are available from the DNR's Urban and Community Forestry program. The grants are funded through the USDA Forest Service's State and Private Forestry program. Local units of government, nonprofit organizations, schools and tribal governments are eligible and encouraged to apply for the grants, which can be used for a variety of projects including: Street and park tree management and planning activities; urban forestry and arboriculture-related training and education events; tree plantings; Arbor Day celebrations and materials.

"Trees provide many benefits to our communities, including shade, oxygen and improved property values," said Kevin Sayers, Urban Community Forestry program coordinator. "The past winter was particularly hard on the trees in many communities. These grants will help to improve management of the urban forest and replace many trees lost due to disease, insects and harsh weather."

Grant applications must be received by September 12. Projects awarded funding must be completed by September 1, 2015. All projects must be performed on public land or land that is open to the public. The ceremony is to honor all those who have served and who currently serve our country. While the group does ask for donations to the cause during the service, all are welcome to join the service whether they donate or not.

Since 2004 the six chapters of Forgotten Eagles of Michigan have collected and contributed more than $134,000 to the Michigan Veterans Trust Fund. They have also established a Veterans Memorial Maintenance Fund to assist chapters in maintaining designated veteran memorials in their area. They make annual contributions to the Grand Rapids Home for Veterans, the D.J. Jacobetti Home for Veterans, and the Aleda E. Lutz Veteran Medical Center in Saginaw, Mich.

According to Ditulio, in addition to their many normal contributions, this year they are looking to make a significant contribution to Stiggy's Dogs which provides service dogs to veterans with post traumatic stress disorder (PTSD) or Traumatic Brain Injury (TBI).

Stiggy's Dogs all pass the Canine Good Citizen Certification test and are paired with their handlers for further training. Since each veteran has unique qualities and needs, each dog is individually trained to meet that veteran's needs. Stiggy's Dogs offers the veteran and dog pairing a lifetime of support after deployment.

"Over past (several) years we are finding more and more veterans who have served during conflicts and come home to resume normal life only to have to go back and do another tour of hard duty.

This coming home and going back for repetitive tours has taken its toll. More and more are returning with impairments such as PTSD. We want to make sure they get the help they need," Ditulio said.

Ditulio admitted he is not a veteran, which makes him all the more appreciative of those who serve. "You don't have to be a veteran to be a member of the Forgotten Eagles (of Michigan). You don't even have to own a motorcycle, just many of us do and we like riding together to spread awareness of veterans' needs and pay respect to the fallen," Ditulio said.

He explained that anyone is welcome to join the organization by attending three events or monthly meetings. The meetings for Chapter 3 are held on the third Sunday of every month at the American Legion in Mt. Pleasant, Mich.

Alcona County Commissioner Caroyln Brummond is always supportive and on hand when the Forgotten Eagles come to Harrisville. "They always tell me Alcona County has the warmest reception for them of all the counties they visit. A few years back I was able to catch a ride with them from Oscoda to Harrisville and it was a real honor and thrill. The Eagles ride for those who can't," Brummond said.

For more information on the nonprofit 501 c (3) Forgotten Eagles of Michigan or to make a donation, visit their website at forgotteneagles.org or attend the event. To join Chapter 3 of the Forgotten Eagles, which covers most of northeast Michigan, call Mike Ditulio at (231) 972-4712.

tival in October. The grounds are open all year and lead to the mile and a half point that reaches out into Lake Huron.

Klemens looks forward to Historical Day every year. Her favorite part is seeing children explore Bailey School, a one-room schoolhouse on the grounds and the museum within the lighthouse.

"They get a real glimpse of what life would have been like back then. It's completely different from today," she said.

Klemens said when she sees the kids smiling and having a good time, she knows that they are learning.

Historical Day is not meant to raise money, but rather raise awareness and generate interest by locals and visitors alike about the ongoing preservation and restoration of the historical site.

Visitors can expect scavenger hunts inside the museum and tours of the lighthouse itself. Music will be provided by Everything Under the Sun (Raymond and Susan Bugg). The tower will be open for anyone who wants to climb it for an expansive view of Lake Huron (a small fee will be charged). Special speakers will be Don Krejcarek, a local forester, who will talk about early logging days. Captain Carl Jahn, author of "Keeping of the Great Lake Lights" will speak and a representative of the U.S. Forest Service will be accompanied by Smokey Bear. Activities for children include, "old time" games, tin foil boat sailing, washing clothes using a wringer washer and rock collecting.

Employees and volunteers will be on-site to conduct tours of the museum and distribute facts about the location, while others will help others climb to the top of the tower.

The event is free and open to the public. For more information, contact Linda Klemens at (989) 727-4703.

How to find the best reacher grabber tool

Dear Savvy Senior,
 What kinds of reacher grabber tools can you recommend for seniors who need help picking things up off the ground. I bought a cheap one at Wal-Mart a few months ago that doesn't work very well for me, and would like to find one that does.

Need a Hand

Dear Need,

A good reacher grabber is a very handy tool for anyone with mobility issues. It works like an extension of your arm allowing you to reach down and pick things up off the ground without bending or stooping over. It can also help with reaching and grabbing things in high overhead places, as well as areas that are difficult to get to.

But with so many different reachers on the market today, finding a good one that works well for you is not always easy. Depending on your needs, here are some top options to consider.

- Lightweight reacher: If you want a reacher primarily for picking up small lightweight items around the house, the "Aluminum Reacher with Magnetic Tip" by Duro-Med is multifunctional. Available in 32 and 26-inch lengths, it has a trigger-style handgrip with a serrated jaw that provides a secure grip when lifting objects.

It also has a magnet built into the tip for picking up lightweight metal objects like a paperclip, and a small hook (or horn) that aids in retrieving things like clothes, shoes or keys. But, because of its lightweight design, it doesn't work as well at retrieving heavier items like canned goods from shelves.

- All-purpose reacher: For retrieving small and medium-sized items, the "Ettore Grip'n Grab" can handle most chores. Available in 16, 32 and 50-inch lengths, it has a soft comfortable trigger handgrip and a rubberized jaw that's strong enough to lift objects up to five pounds and up to four inches wide, yet sensitive enough to pick up something as small as a dime. The jaw can also swivel 90 degrees to reach things in awkward spaces.

- Ergonomic handle reachers: If you have hand or wrist arthritis that makes gripping difficult, the 31-inch "Medline Reacher" has a handgrip that lets you use all five fingers to close the jaw for better gripping power. Or, consider the new "Health-Smart GripLoc Sliding Reacher," a 43-inch two-handed reacher with a power slide handle that opens and closes the jaw (no hand squeezing required), and a twist lock that locks the jaw when it's clinched to secure your item.

- Folding reacher: For easier storage or travel, the 32-inch "EZ Reacher Collapsible" has a slip-joint in the arm that allows it to fold in half. It also has stainless steel fingers with silicone suction cup tips that do a nice job of picking up large and small items; and a pistol grip with an optional safety lock that locks the jaw onto items without continuously squeezing the trigger.

- Adjustable length reacher: If you need a reacher for various lengths, the "PikStik TelescoPik" has a lockable sliding shaft that adjusts from 30 to 44 inches. It also has a trigger grip and a rotating rubberized jaw that can lift up to five pounds.

- Outdoor reacher: For outdoor use, the 36-inch "Unger Nifty Nabber" is ideal for heavy-duty jobs. It has a rubber-coated jaw for a strong and reliable grip with a built-in magnet, an aluminum handle and can lift 20 pounds.

You can buy reacher grabbers at many pharmacies, retail, medical equipment and home improvement stores. But, because it's a specialty item, the selection is very limited. Your best bet is to buy one online at amazon.com, which sells all of the top reachers at prices ranging between $12 and $40. Just type the product name in the search bar to find it.

Oscoda native serves aboard destroyer USS Forrest Sherman

A 1999 Oscoda High School graduate and Oscoda native is serving aboard USS Forrest Sherman (DDG 98), one of the world's most versatile multi-mission combat ships.

Petty Officer 1st Class Shawn Roche is a damage controlman aboard the Norfolk-based ship, an Arleigh Burke-class destroyer, that is longer than 1.5 football fields. The ship is 66 feet wide and weighs more than 9,200 tons. Twin gas turbine engines can push the ship through the water at more than 30 mph. USS Forrest Sherman is named for Admiral Forrest Percival Sherman, and is the second U.S. Navy ship to bear the name.

As a seasoned non-commissioned officer with numerous responsibilities, Roche said he takes pride in serving as a teacher and mentor to today's junior sailors. "I have seven people I mentor," said Roche. "I have a lot of interaction with the junior sailors, both personally and professionally. I take great pride in my protégés' professional development. They're doing well."

Roche is proud of the work he is doing as part of the Forrest Sherman's crew, protecting America on the world's oceans. "Our presence is definitely felt when we deploy," Roche said. "We were ready. That's the whole reason we have these platforms and systems."

Sailors' jobs are highly varied aboard USS Forrest Sherman. Approximately 34 officers and 253 enlisted men and women make up the ship's company, which keeps all parts of the destroyer running smoothly — this includes everything from washing dishes and preparing meals to handling weaponry and maintaining the engines.

"As John Paul Jones said, men mean more than guns in the way you run a ship and it's still true today. It's all about our people, I am proud and amazed by the knowledge they display and the work my sailors do every day," said Cmdr. John A Kriacianas, the ship's commanding officer. "Their professionalism, motivation and commitment to the Navy are genuinely inspiring."

Fast, maneuverable, and technically advanced, destroyers provide the required warfighting capabilities and operational flexibility to execute multi-mission evolutions such as surface warfare, anti-submarine warfare and anti-air warfare. USS Forrest Sherman can operate independently or as part of carrier strike groups, surface action groups, amphibious ready groups, and underway replenishment groups.

As a member of one of the U.S. Navy's most versatile combat ships, Roche and other USS Forrest Sherman sailors know they are part of a legacy that will last beyond their lifetimes.

"My gear saves lives," Roche said, noting the importance of being able to repair damage that might occur to a ship. "I get a feeling of pride from doing the nation's work," Roche said.

USDA is an equal opportunity provider

New form of mobility provides more possibilities for individuals

By Cheryl Peterson
Editor

A change in perspective can make a significant difference in someone's life regardless of whether it is a view point or from a position in which life is viewed.

One Harrisville resident has had the opportunity to view life from a different perspective thanks to the efforts and generosity of a national organization that helps veterans with mobility issues.

While Kevin Bradley is not one to let a degenerative nerve disorder keep him from being active despite being dependent on a motorized wheelchair/scooter, he has not been able to do anything in an upright position for many years - until this spring.

In mid-March Bradley received an Action TrackChair, which allows mobility challenged individuals the opportunity to travel through terrain that most wheelchairs/scooters cannot tread and, it lifts the individual into an upright position - changing their entire perspective and lives.

Bradley is an active outdoorsman who enjoys hunting and fishing, hand biking and competing in the state and national wheelchair and ambulatory sports in a variety of categories including air rifle, powerlift press, hand cycle races, and field events of discus, shot put and javelin.

He also has two scooters that he depends on to navigate through the various activities he enjoys - however, they are limited to "good conditions" of relatively flat, clear terrain because of their construction.

Even though he's an avid outdoorsman who hunts deer, turkey and bear and enjoys ice fishing - any time Bradley goes out, he is limited to how far he can traverse through the varied terrain. The TrackChair broadens those boundaries by its design.

Until he received the TrackChair Bradley had not been able to get beyond the immediate area of his home, which sits on six acres. "I'm able to fill bird feeders and squirrel feeders... and I plan to use it in Manitoba (Ontario, Canada) for deer hunting in November," he said.

And, more importantly, "I can stand up - be face-to-face with people - without the worry of falling," Bradley said as he engaged the chair so he was in a standing position.

"Kevin is just the type of guy this chair was designed for," said Brian Reno, the owner of Michigan Outdoor Mobility, the only Michigan based dealer for TrackChairs. "The quality of the company and the quality of the chair and our passion to get disabled people back outdoors is what drives me every day."

Reno, who lives downstate and travels all over the state delivering TrackChairs used to be a sales representative for a wheelchair company. "I got into this (line of work) because I have a disabled son," Reno said. "Most of us in this business have someone in our lives who is disabled."

After his son received a TrackChair and he saw the way it changed his life, Reno decided to work for the company. "It's a passion for us – it's why we do what we do," he said. "It's a tremendous job. I get to change lives... It's not about the money to us, it's about changing lives. I know it sounds crazy, but it's life changing."

Reno said there are several varieties of tracked chairs on the market; however, he liked the TrackChair because it was "priced much more reasonably than other chairs. Our chairs are at least half the cost of other chairs."

He explained manual wheelchairs cost about $7,000 and other power chairs range in cost between $25,000 to $50,000 at the high end. Depending on the model of TrackChair and its features, which are customized for the individual, the seated version is $11,000 and the standup version is $16,000.

For Bradley and other veterans obtaining a TrackChair at no cost can be attempted by applying to Independence Fund, a veteran based non-profit group which works to help veterans with service related mobility issues. "I drive all over the state to show chairs," Reno said. "Anyone who wants to tryout a chair can. I work with veterans and take them right through the process of getting a chair. I get to know every one of my guys (and gals) through this process," Reno said.

Reno will also help those who have to work through their insurance company or with groups that are raising funds to purchase a TrackChair for an individual. He gets involved in any of the processes. "I will help them work at putting on a fundraiser... church groups or service clubs that put on fundraisers for someone in the community, I can bring a chair to the fundraising event so people can see what it does."

"Or there are groups that buy a chair and offer it to be used as a type of group chair. Then people who need them can 'check it out' for a day, use it and then bring it back as a way to give back to the community," Reno said.

He explained TrackChairs come in variety of sizes from children to adult and may be customized to a certain extent to fit the needs of each individual from color to placement of headrests, seatbelts, et cetera.

"I knew it would change other people's lives, but I never knew it would change mine," Reno said.

Catching the elusive walleye

In many of Michigan's lakes walleye can be a rather elusive sport fish, making the quest for their tasty fillets difficult at times throughout the year.

Walleyes are predators that eat a wide range of small baitfish like yellow perch and various minnows, which logically has many anglers targeting these fish with minnows and crank baits. However, walleye also feed on aquatic insects when they are available and using crawlers on crawler harnesses can be an effective technique for working towards a limit.

July is a time of year when walleye in many lakes will typically be in depths ranging from 20 to 35 feet where they are feeding on insects or baitfish. During these feeding periods many walleye will be suspended in the water column and trolling a crawler harness at low speeds can be an effective way of hooking these elusive fish.

Be sure to check in with your local management units about local fishing opportunities to catch these delicious toothy critters.

(This tip was written by Seth Herbst, DNR fisheries management biologist in Lansing, Mich.)

Northeast

Lower Peninsula
July 31

• Rogers City: With storms and strong winds, water temperatures have been fluctuating over this last week. When anglers can get out fishing wasn't all that bad with a mixed bag of Chinook and Atlantic salmon, steelhead, lake trout and the occasional walleye.

They are fishing straight out from the marina, up near the state park and Forty Mile Point or south towards Calcite Harbor, Swan Bay and Adams Point. Most are using downriggers, lead core, copper and dipseys throughout the water column in 45 to 130 feet. Steelhead and Atlantic salmon were caught up high in the water column on bright colored spoons like orange. Attractors with flies, squid and cut bait have caught some of the bigger salmon. Good colors were blue and silver, black and white, green, blue or anything that glows early and late.

• Alpena: Anglers had good success for lake trout straight out and along the first and second set of "humps." Those fishing around North Point and Thunder Bay Island caught Chinook and pink salmon, lake trout, steelhead and walleye. Spoons and attractors with flies, squid or cut bait worked best. Walleye were caught straight out in 20 to 50 feet with body baits or crawler harnesses. A few fish were caught around Thunder Bay Island, North Shore and North Point.

• Harrisville: When anglers can get out, fishing was good. Those targeting walleye had success in front of the harbor, to the north or the south in 12 to 40 feet. Look for bottom contours, gravel and rock or anything in the way of structure. Late evening and very early morning were best when using small spoons, crawler harnesses, bottom bouncers and stick baits. Lake trout are there but anglers will have to find them. Try 60 to 180 feet with a variety of lures.

• Oscoda: Had lots of lake trout with fish caught as far north as Greenbush and down to AuSable Point in waters between 80 and 200 feet deep. Spoons, flies, spin glows and cut bait in dark colors worked best. Steelhead and salmon were caught but the numbers were down. With the high winds, scum lines have not been able to form. Look for steelhead in the upper third of the water column near the scum lines.

• AuSable River: Has walleye between the mouth and the dam and they are hitting on crawlers, leeches and stick baits. Those fishing up river are targeting the deeper holes. Some large smallmouth bass were also caught.

• Higgins Lake: This is a great time to take the kids out fishing because anglers are catching lots of rock bass. Yellow perch up to 10 inches were caught in 20 to 50 feet around the Sunken Island and the Main Island. Good lake trout action along the drop-off in 80 to 120 feet when trolling spoons, rapalas, body baits and cowbells. Those jigging caught fish on Swedish pimples, crocodiles and cast masters.

• Houghton Lake: Fishing slowed with the cold front however anglers are still taking a mixed bag of bluegills, sunfish, crappie and some nice rock bass. Walleye and some big pike were taken when trolling the weed beds. Bass anglers have caught some nice smallmouth.

• Tawas: Trolling for walleye has been hampered by windy conditions. Walleye action north of the Charity Islands has slowed. A couple fish were picked up in 25 feet near Alabaster. A couple of steelhead and walleye were taken around Buoy No. 2 and from the weed beds off Jerry's Marina. Those still-fishing with minnows along those weed beds did catch a few decent perch and a couple pike. Pier fishing was slow with only a few pike, smallmouth bass, rock bass, small perch and a couple bluegills taken.

• AuGres: Walleye fishing slowed but anglers were still getting some fish north of Buoys 1 and 2 in 25 feet or off the Saganing Bar in 12 feet. Another contingent would be 30 to 35 feet out near the shipping channel.

• AuGres River: Is currently being dredged. Fishing was slow.

(The Weekly Fishing Report is intended to give anglers an "idea" of what is going on around the state. Updates for the report come from DNR Fisheries creel clerks and field staff as well as DNR conservation officers working in the field. For those looking for specific information on a certain body of water or port, it is safe to say if a certain species is being caught in some waters in the area, more than likely they are being caught in all waters in that section of the state that have that species. This report has been provided by the DNR Fisheries Division; (517) 284-5830; located in Constitution Hall, 525 W. Allegan Street, Lansing, Mich. 48933.)

Partnerships key to success of upper Black River brook trout fishery

Although the late author and avid fly-fisherman Ernest Hemingway is well known for writing about the Upper Peninsula's Two-Hearted River (which was actually the Fox River incognito), there are other trout streams in Michigan that he held so dear, they didn't even appear in his short stories – only in letters to trusted friends and confidantes.

The northeastern Lower Peninsula's upper Black River, long recognized as one of Michigan's best brook trout streams, was one of those hush-hush Hemingway haunts that today, through the work of a strategically aligned group of partner organizations, has become a destination point for anglers chasing wild brookies.

"It's renowned for its wild brook trout population," said Tim Cwalinski, the Michigan Department of Natural Resources (DNR) fisheries biologist who manages waters within the Black River Watershed. "We get pretty good survival and growth and it is a destination for anglers who want to fish for brook trout, particularly the East Branch, the mainstream and Canada Creek."

But that doesn't mean it can't be even better. And a unique group of partners – known as the Upper Black

Members of the Upper Black River Council help place structure to improve trout habitat on the upper Black River in the northeastern Lower Peninsula.

River Council – has been doing its best to make it so.

Originally formed in the early 1990s, specifically to deal with problem beaver dams that impounded and warmed the water, the council has expanded its mission into the restoration and preservation of the watershed, which it recognizes as "a highly prized multiple use natural resource."

The Upper Black River Council is made up of a wide variety of organizations and individuals – the DNR Fisheries Division, U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, Huron Pines (a conservation group), private landowners, Canada Creek Ranch, Black River Ranch, the Tip of the Mitt Watershed Council, and the Northeast Michigan Council of Governments (NEMCOG) among them. They all add up to an award-winning crew that gets things accomplished.

"It's something that has evolved over time, a collaborative partnership," said Carol Rose, chairperson of the Upper Black River Council. "There's no final arbitrator for the decisions we make. We meet two or three times a year, talk about the needs of the resources, who might have funding or could get funding, set priorities, and get to it."

Recent council efforts on the Black River include improving road/stream crossings, removal of dams (built by humans as well as beavers), and placement of large woody debris, which provides a number of benefits to the river and its residents.

The woody-debris structures – which are built in a trapezoid-type shape – are designed to perform a variety of functions according to Cwalinski. They provide diverse in-stream cover for both juvenile and adult trout; accumulate silt (uncovering coarser substrates mid-channel that may provide spawning habitat for trout); provide additional surface area for aquatic insects; and stabilize erodible banks.

"Some structures are built in order to capture sand and sediment and build bank," Cwalinski said. "And while that might have been the goal of the structure, the ends of the structure – further out in the stream – are still being used by adult fish."

"Every piece of wood we put in there becomes a base for the food chain. You have insects that use it, you have bait fish that live under it, you have turtles that bask on it. These are all side benefits for the primary purpose. For the most part, if you're doing something for one reason, it's also helping other causes."

Cwalinski said the council is invaluable to accomplishing goals he's had his eye on, but that were dependent on help from outside resources.

"I can't get all of this work done with just my staff, we don't have the manpower," said Cwalinski. "Thank goodness I've got this council who can help maintain and rehabilitate the river. Fisheries Division quantifies habitat and fish populations in the watershed, but the watershed council and its members supplement our preservation and enhancement efforts. “

Nico Tucker, a transportation and natural resources planner with NEMCOG, oversees the four-man work crew on the Black River. A former hands-on river restorer himself, Tucker said his crews have put in more than 1,000 structures and enhanced eight to nine miles of river since he took on the job in 2007.

Tucker said he usually walks the stream with Cwalinski, identifying areas that can use structures, and then he compiles the permit application. He serves as liaison to the council, which comes up with funding for the projects.

“There are some stretches where it’s just large, flat, open stretch and we place appropriate structures to diversify the habitat,” Tucker said. “What we put into the stream depends a great deal on what’s already there.”

One recent achievement is the removal of Saunders Dam, which was on private property purchased by the DNR through a Natural Resources Trust Fund grant. Fisheries Division evaluated the dam, decided it should be removed, and then worked with a variety of partners to get it done. As a result, the trout now have unhindered access to eight more miles of river upstream. "The Fish and Wildlife Service provided a fish passage grant, Huron Pines helped administer the grants - it's a true partnership overseeing this watershed, under the oversight of the Black River Council," Cwalinski said. Cwalinski explained the private ranches often use the work crews to maintain and enhance their stretches of stream, then pay for the service - a working relationship that benefits everyone. "This is one of the best-organized watershed groups we work with," Cwalinski said. "I wish we had these for the other watersheds up here. The Upper Black River Council is there to improve, maintain and give back to the watershed. I consider myself very lucky to have this group to work with."

In 2013, 44 children nationwide died from heatstroke after being accidentally left in a parked vehicle, including three deaths in Michigan. Even with mild temperatures outside, the temperature inside a vehicle can rise 20 degrees in as little as 10 minutes.

Heatstroke is the leading cause of non-crash, vehicle-related deaths for children, according to Safe Kids Worldwide. A child's body heats up three to five times faster than an adult's, making them more susceptible to heatstroke. To prevent this tragedy, parents and caregivers are reminded to A-C-T:

baby in the backseat." Take steps to remember not to leave a child in vehicle.

- Write yourself a note and place it where you'll see it when you leave the vehicle.
- Place your bag, briefcase or something else you're sure to need in the back seat so you'll see a child left in the vehicle.
- Keep an object in the car seat, such as a stuffed toy. Once the child is buckled in, place the object where the driver will notice it when he or she leaves the vehicle.
- Ask your child care center to call if your child doesn't arrive on time for child care.
- If you are dropping your child off at child care, and it's normally your spouse, partner or caregiver who drops them off, have them call you to make sure the drop off went according to plan.
- If you see a child alone in a hot vehicle, call 911 immediately. If they are in distress due to heat, get them out as quickly as possible. Cool the child rapidly (not in an ice bath, but by spraying them with cool water).

A: Avoid heatstroke-related injury and death by never leaving your child alone in a car, not even for a minute. Keep your car locked when you're not in it so kids don't get in on their own.

C: Create reminders by putting something in the back of your car next to your child such as a briefcase, a purse or a cell phone that is needed at your final destination. This is especially important if you're not following your normal routine.

T: Take action. If you see a child alone in a car, call 911. Emergency personnel want you to call and they are trained to respond to these situations. One call could save a life.

"A hot car can be deadly," said Community Service Trooper Ashley Simpson. "Always be sure to look twice before getting out, it's easier than you think to forget a

Red Cross issues urgent call for blood and platelet donors

The American Red Cross is facing a looming blood shortage, leading to an urgent need for donors of all blood types to roll up a sleeve and give.

Donations through the Red Cross are down approximately eight percent over the last 11 weeks, resulting in about 80,000 fewer donations than expected. The number of donors continues to decline, and the shortfall is significant enough that the Red Cross could experience an emergency situation in the coming weeks.

In addition, the Independence Day holiday falling on Friday reduced the number of blood drives scheduled in early July. Many sponsors did not host drives because people took vacations either over the long weekend or for the entire week. In an average summer week, about 4,400 Red Cross blood drives are scheduled, compared to Independence Day week when only 3,450 drives occurred.

“Hospital patients continue to need lifesaving blood this summer, and they’re relying on the generosity of volunteer donors to give them hope in the days and weeks ahead,” said Jim Flickema, CEO for the Red Cross Great Lakes Blood Services Region. “Please, consider giving the gift of life. Each day donations come up short, less blood is available for patients in need – and you never know when it could be your loved one needing blood.”

Eligible donors with types O negative, B negative and A negative blood are especially needed at this time. Type O negative is the universal blood type and can be transfused to anyone who needs blood. Types A negative and B negative can be transfused to Rh positive or negative patients.

There is also an urgent need for platelet donations. Platelets – a key clotting component of blood often needed by cancer patients, burn victims and bone marrow recipients – must be transfused within five days of donation, so it’s important to have a steady supply of platelets on hand.

The summer can be among the most challenging times of the year for blood and platelet donations as regular donors delay giving while they take vacations and participate in summer activities. When school is out of session for summer break, donations from those who normally give on campus tend to drop by more than 80 percent.

Every day this summer is a chance to give hope to patients in need and their network of family and friends. July 13 marked the halfway point for the Red Cross campaign “100 Days of Summer. 100 Days of Hope.” Blood and platelet donations are needed now and for the rest of the summer.

Individuals who donated blood earlier this summer may now be eligible to donate again and help patients such as accident victims, heart surgery patients and children with blood disorders.

The next American Red Cross blood drive in Alcona County is August 20 at the Senior Center in Lincoln from noon to 5:45 p.m. Additional blood drives can be found by going to www.redcrossblood.org. To schedule an appointment at any of the blood drives, call (800) 733-2767.

StarWatch By Gary Becker - Big, Bright Full Moon, August 10

My wife, Susan, recently commented that I am far too optimistic about my desire to get people to observe the sky during the summer months. She added that a more appropriate statement might be to "look up and view the haze." Alright, so summer does have its pitfalls with regards to seeing stars. Mist, humidity, fog, thunderstorms, and just plain cloudy nights all contribute to the difficulties of seeing the heavens during the warmer months. Add to that as a personal aside, 10 days of pristine late June observing under the dark skies of the Utah desert, and even I sometimes question my motives for looking up when I'm back East. This week, however, it's different. Unless clouds vault the heavens, it should be easy to watch the moon wax to its full phase on August 10. What is interesting about this full moon is that it occurs at a time when Luna is at perigee, closest to the Earth, and therefore, bigger and brighter in the sky. The moon circles Earth in a period of 27.3 days, but because Earth changes its orbital position with respect to the sun during this time, it takes the moon an extra 2.2 days to realign itself into the same phase configuration. This causes the period of time from full moon to full moon to be longer, 29.5 days to be more precise. While the moon revolves around the Earth in its elliptical (oval-shaped) orbit, its distance is changing in a time period which is different from its orbital and phase intervals. The time from perigee to perigee takes 27.6 days. If you think of these rhythms as drumbeats, it means that every couple of years the drumsticks hit the head of the drum precisely in sync, i.e., the moon is full and closest to the Earth at the same time. This creates what is called a perigee full moon, and it is bigger and about 30 percent brighter than an average full moon. So if the full moon appears extra big and extra bright when it rises on August 10, remember that this time it will be due partly to an illusion, and partly to reality. www.astronomy.org

Finding extra money

When you need a little extra money, chances are you can find some if you know where to look. Even a small change in habits can leave more money in your wallet.

- If you have a collection or a hobby, sell off your duplicates, such as stamps, postcards or coins. (Don't be tempted to buy new pieces.)
- Check banks and credit unions to see if you can find a better interest rate than you have now.

- Go generic at the grocery store for one month.

- If you're gone all day, consider whether the expense of a programmable thermostat will save on your fuel bills this winter. (Start looking now for the clear plastic window coverings, before they're gone.)

- Pay attention to the credit-card ads that come in the mail. If you find one that says, for example, zero interest for 18 months if you do a balance transfer, that's worth paying attention to. Even if you only transfer one high-interest card, you'll save money. Beware the interest rate that takes effect on your new card after that period expires.

- Make a list of your bartering talents. You might know more than you think you do (sewing, bicycle repair, oil change) and those skills have value to someone else. Check the barter section of Craigslist.org for ideas.

Also scroll through the Wanted list to see what you might have that someone else will buy. Your old albums and 45s, musical instruments, books and vintage computer games might fetch a few dollars and free up space.

- Cancel your gym membership. Seriously, if you haven't used it more than twice since January, are you likely to start back?

- Are you reading all those magazines that arrive each month? If not, cancel them and get your money back on the balance of the subscription.

- Put your loose change in a jar every day. Don't take any out until the jar is full.

- Do an hourly comparison: Before you make an unnecessary purchase, calculate how many hours you'd have to work to pay for it.

- Before you fill up the tank, check www.gasbuddy.com to compare prices in your area.

Best bet: Before making any purchase, consider whether you'd feel better with the item in hand -- or with the money still in your wallet.

FRUIT TOOT! You are challenged to rearrange the order of the six words at right so that the word CHERRY, shown in the heavy diagonal squares, becomes an ORANGE. That is to say, shuffle the order of the six words so that the diagonal letters spell ORANGE.

You may wish to cut out the words to shuffle them, or simply write them on another sheet of paper.

Time limit for this exercise is two minutes.

PIN DROP! Add my new credit card pin number to my old one and the sum is 7254. Subtract my new one from my old one and the result is 1472. What are the two numbers?

PAPER TIGER KNOW-HOW

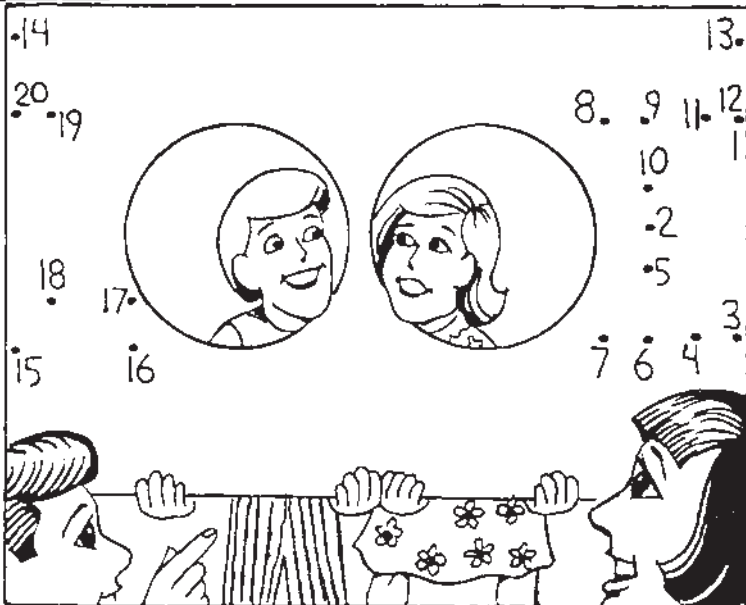

WANT to impress someone with your strength? Here is an old stunt that involves a little science:

Twist an ordinary paper napkin until it forms a tough rope. Then invite a bystander to tear it in two (see illus. above).

While your friend may labor in vain, roll and twist another napkin, blow on it. Alakazam, it parts pronto.

Here's the trick:

Blowing on it is just a ruse. Before twisting the second napkin, dip your fingers in a glass of water, and press them against the napkin's center. Water will weaken the paper and allow you to pull it apart with ease. Give it a try.

SEE HERE! A sign designed to attract attention is on display above. Draw dot to dot to complete the picture.

SPELLBINDER

SCORE 10 points for using all the letters in the word below to form two complete words:

THEN score 2 points each for all words of four letters or more found among the letters.

Try to score at least 50 points.

Moments In Time

By The History Channel

- On Aug. 19, 1812, the U.S. Navy frigate Constitution defeats the British frigate Guerriere in an engagement off the coast of Nova Scotia. The British shot merely bounced off the Constitution's sides, as if the ship were made of iron rather than wood. The bolts fastening the timbers and copper sheathing on "Old Ironsides" were provided by Paul Revere.
- On Aug. 23, 1904, Harold D. Weed of Canastota, New York, is issued U.S. Patent No. 768,495 for his "Grip-Tread for Pneumatic Tires," a tire chain to be used on automobiles to increase traction on roads slick with mud, snow or ice.
- On Aug. 20, 1911, a dispatcher in the New York Times office sends the first telegram around the world to determine how fast a commercial message could be sent. After it traveled more than 28,000 miles, relayed by 16 different operators, the reply was received by the same operator 16 1/2 minutes later.
- On Aug. 21, 1920, Daphne Milne, wife of writer A.A. Milne, gives birth to a son the couple names Christopher Robin Milne. Christopher Robin was immortalized in A.A. Milne's books "Winnie-the-Pooh" and "The House at Pooh Corner."
- On Aug. 18, 1958, Vladimir Nabokov's controversial novel "Lolita" is published in the U.S. The novel, about a man's obsession with a 12-year-old girl, had been rejected by four publishers before G.P. Putnam's Sons accepted it.
- On Aug. 24, 1969, Company A of the Third Battalion, 196th Light Infantry Brigade refuses the order of its commander, Lt. Eugene Schurtz, Jr., to continue an attack near Da Nang, Vietnam, because they had "simply had enough." Schurtz was relieved of his command and transferred. Neither he nor his men were ever disciplined.
- On Aug. 22, 1992, the second day of a standoff at Randy Weaver's Ruby Ridge cabin in Idaho, FBI sharpshooter Lon Horiuchi wounds Weaver and kills his unarmed wife, Vicki, as she holds their baby daughter. In 1997, Horiuchi was charged with involuntary manslaughter in the death, but a federal judge dismissed the charge, citing the alleged immunity of federal officers.

Adaptive sports get VA grant

The Department of Veterans Affairs is putting up $8 million for grants to providers of adaptive sports opportunities for disabled veterans and members of the armed forces.

A lot goes into providing events and opportunities: training, supplies, coaches, equipment, recreation therapists, program development and more, right in the veteran's community. For more advanced athletes, there are the Paralympic and adaptive sport programs on regional and national levels. The grant money will be very welcome and might even result in additional programs being created across the country. (In addition, when training for the Paralympics, there's a monthly training allowance.)

A few examples of upcoming events: Summer Sports Clinic in San Diego, Sept. 7-12; Tee Tournament in Iowa City, Iowa, Sept. 8-11; Warrior Games in Colorado Springs, Colo., Sept. 28-Oct. 4; Creative Arts Festival in Milwaukee, Oct. 27-Nov. 2. To learn more about these events, go online to www.va.gov/adaptivesports.

If you wonder if one of the adaptive sports programs is for you (or someone you know), go to the website and click around. Look at the Mission Re-Defined video. (Warning: There is a 3-second IED explosion at the 25-second mark on the video. It passes quickly.)

To find ongoing activities and sports clubs near you, click on Search by Location and put in your ZIP code. (Don't search by your state because I found at least one that was misfiled.) You'll see a list of clubs along with contact information, including phone and email. Click on each entry to see which activities are offered and which disability groups are supported.

The variety of available activities is wide ranging: paddle sports, basketball, shooting, wheelchair tennis, rugby, water skiing, cross-country skiing and much more. There's something for everyone.

Fleet stalls in light winds at 13th annual Sturgeon Point Regatta

On a sunny, almost windless Saturday the 10 boat fleet of the 13th Annual Sturgeon Point Regatta struggled over the starting line. By the race's end, and despite a shortened course, eight boats had pulled out and Greenbush resident Paul Corsi and his sons, finished in the top two spots.

Corsi, also of Rochester Hills, Mich., along with his son, Matt, was the first to cross the finish line, a full two hours and 31 minutes after the race start at 1 p.m. In past years, racers have completed a longer course in less than half the time.

The boats usually sprint at the start, but this year's lack of wind crippled the fleet. Scott Nolan of Rochester Hills, Mich. was first over the starting line in a Butterfly, followed by Nick Corsi in his Sunfish. The group struggled with light winds that often left them stalled in the water.

Corsi and his son, Matt, did manage to catch what little air there was and crossed the finish line 93 minutes ahead of his son, Nick. On corrected time, however, it was a close race.

Jeff Nolan of New York never got his Sunfish across the start line. He was the first to abandon the race followed by Stan Dobry and Brian Morris, both of Harrisville. They had to paddle their Wayfarer to the start.

Picnic hosts Eppa and Buffie Rixey of Harrisville and Cincinnati, Ohio, also had a slow start on their 16-foot Hobie catamaran. They eventually radioed in to shore to be towed in to get the grills started and the potluck party rolling. Rixey won the race in 2013.

Gradually, the remaining boats, their sails slack, limped back to their home beaches. Captains and crews then walked back to join the picnic hosted by last year's winners. A crowd of about 100 gathered on picnic tables and chairs for the traditional post-race meal.

"Commodore" Robert Nolan of Harrisville announced the results using Portsmouth Handicap corrected time. Corsi and his son, Matt, received the Sterling Silver Cup and $100 gift certificate from Rosa's Look-out Inn in Spruce. Nick Corsi received a $50 gift certificate from the Mountain Inn in Black River.

Jeff Nolan was given the third place prize, another $50 gift certificate for having the "common sense" to abandon the race first.

The regatta is a fundraiser for the Alcona Historical Society's Sturgeon Point Lighthouse and the Alcona Humane Society. More than $1,500 was raised for the two groups.
