Harrisville Harbor dock construction project getting underway

By Mary Weber
Staff Writer

Bidding for the repair and replacement of portions of the docks at the Harrisville Harbor of Refuge has begun following the approval of two Michigan Department of Natural Resources (DNR) grants.

Construction and structural repair of the dock is planned to be completed in five phases with a speculated cost of $2,500,000, according to Neal Gehring, chairperson of the Harrisville Harbor Commission. Gehring will not disclose the amount of the grants approved by the DNR for the first two phases until the bidding process was complete.

He explained that since the harbor is self-funded through fuel sales and dockage fees, revenue funds to make the necessary repairs was scarce. The harbor commission had no choice but to begin a dialog with the DNR about grant opportunities for a construction project to make the docks safer and inviting to boaters.

The docks were last replaced, Gehring believed, in 1986; which is well past their 25-year life expectancy. The last major repair, which Gehring described as a "band aid fix," was in 2013 and cost the harbor about $25,000.

Phase one and two of the project includes fixing the ramp from the fixed dock to the floating south dock and removing several damaged slips at the end of the south dock prior to the beginning of this year's boating season on June 1. This will leave the remaining portion of the south dock for use during this season.

"When this season concludes, the south dock will be removed and a new south dock will be constructed, including utilities, and will be ready for the 2018 boating season," Gehring said. Utilities include water, electricity, a new bubbler system, which is used in the winter to keep damaging ice from forming around docks, and fire safety equipment.

Phase three, which does not have grant approval yet, includes the fixed dock. The portion of the dock system that extends from the shore and then extends north and south will be re-decked and inspected for structural issues and repairs if needed. New utilities will be included for the fixed dock. A boater gathering deck area, approximately 30 feet by 30 feet, will also be added to the land connection of the fixed dock.

Phases four and five of the project, also not yet grant approved, will include replacement of the north dock and all utilities. A new sanitary pump-out system, a new fuel delivery system and any work that needs to be done on the fixed dock under the gas shack. This includes lifting the gas shack to replace the decking under it and inspecting for any structural deficiencies.

Gehring said the process of applying for the 100 percent grant through DNR, which began with a grant application for the preparation of a preliminary engineering study (PES), was tedious and time consuming.

"Once the grant was approved by the MDNR, the Harrisville Harbor Commission/City of Harrisville contracted with Edgewater Resources LLC of St. Joseph, Mich., to prepare the PES document. This portion of the process took about one year to complete," Gehring said.

Once that was completed and approved, the Harrisville Harbor Commission prepared a grant application for infrastructure improvements for all the work needed to be accomplished as described in the PES document, including design, preparation of plans and specifications for construction. Gehring explained at that point it became apparent the DNR preferred the project to be built in phases, so the Harrisville Harbor Commission split up the project into five "usable" phases, which, if approved, would compete with other state-wide projects for fund-

Free men's health dinner program in Lincoln

By Mary Weber
Staff Writer

Hops and Health, a free, fast-paced, men's health dinner program is coming to Lincoln.

The evening, which includes door prizes, free buffet dinner by JJ's Catering and beer by donation, is for men only, 18 years and older, and will be held at the Alcona Free and Accepted Masonic Lodge 292 in Lincoln, Thursday, May 4.

This program is being brought to the area by Friends Together, a nonprofit organization in Alpena. The Friends Together mission is to serve people dealing with cancer in six northern Michigan counties, including Alcona. It also promotes prevention, education and wellness.

Bill Morford, one of four employees of Friends Together, said the event has been proven to be a fun evening. "We've held two of these in Alpena with great success," Morford said.

The program will include several health professionals such as a family physician, nutritionist, dentist, ophthalmologist, oncologist, and mental health professional who will sit down with men at their tables and give an eight-minute talk.

"It's not overwhelming, it's

"It's not overwhelming, it's just enough to give the men two or three nuggets of health information. At the end of eight minutes, the health care professional will then move to the next table. It's sort of like speed dating a doctor."

just enough to give the men two or three nuggets of health information. At the end of eight minutes, the health care professional will then move to the next table. It's sort of like speed dating a doctor," Morford said.

Half way through the program there will be a break for dinner and time to socialize. The program is expected to last two hours with enough time to ask questions of the professionals afterwards.

Morford explained Friends Together received a grant two years ago from the Men's Health Foundation for $14,000 with the stipulation some of the funds were to be used encourage men to take care of their health. "We are just over a year on that grant and had a bit left over so we decided to bring it to Alcona County," Morford said.

"Men are 50 percent less likely than women to get a check up with a doctor,"

Morford said, "The program may look at some cancer issues, but will mostly cover men's overall health."

Judy Burns, Founder and Director of Friends Together, said many times men are either not symptomatic or ignore symptoms and by the time they do go in and see a doctor, their condition has advanced greatly.

"One of our goals is prevention and education," Burns said.

Morford thanked the Masons of Lincoln for hosting the Hops and Health event. He said the group was providing leadership for the community.

Masonic Lodge 292 is located at 316 E. Traverse Bay Road, in Lincoln next to the Lincoln branch of the Alcona County Library.

The doors open at 5:30 p.m. and the program begins at 6 p.m.

And what could make the issue more complicated than the appearance of a female Yeti?

SENIOR LIFESTYLES

What to do with cremated ashes?

Dear Savvy Senior,
When my father passed away a few months ago we had him cremated, but are now wondering what to do with his ashes. My sister and I would like to do something celebratory for his life, but aren't sure what to do. Any suggestions?

Dear No,

If your dad didn't leave any final instructions on what to do with his cremated remains (ashes), you have a wide array of choices. They can be kept, buried or scattered in a variety of ways and in many locations.

For many people, keeping the ashes of their deceased love one close by provides a feeling of comfort. If you fit into this category, you could keep his ashes in an urn on the mantel or in a cabinet, or you could also scatter some of them into your lawn or garden, shake them into a backyard pond or dig a hole and bury them. Another possible option is eco-friendly urns (like UrnaBios.com or EterniTrees.com) that contain a seed that grows into a tree or plant after being buried.

If you want your dad's final resting place to be at a cemetery, you have several choices depending on how much you're willing to spend. With most cemeteries, you can either bury his ashes in a plot, or place them in cremation monument, a mausoleum, or a cemetery building called a columbarium.

If you want to scatter his ashes, to help you chose an appropriate location, think about what your dad would have liked. For example, did he have a favorite fishing spot, camping area, golf course, beach or park that held a special meaning?

These are all possibilities, but be aware to that if you choose to scatter his ashes in a public location or on private land, you'll need get permission from the management, local government or the land owner.

National parks, for example, require you to have a permit before you scatter ashes. If you wish to dispose of them at sea, the Environmental Protection Agency asks you be at least three miles from shore. Beach scatterings are also illegal in some states, including California, but are rarely enforced. And many public areas, like Central Park and Disneyland prohibit scattering ashes too, as do most professional and college sports stadiums.

If you want to do something truly unique with his ashes, you have many choices here too, but they can get pricy ranging from a few hundred to several thousand dollars. Here are several to consider.

• Scattering by air: This free-spirited option lets you spread your dad's ashes into the sky so the particles can be taken by the wind. To do this, you could hire a private plane, helicopter or hot air balloon service, or use a balloon scattering service like EternalAscent.com or Mesoloft.com. Or, you could even send his ashes into outer space with ElysiumSpace.com.

• Scattering by sea: If your dad loved the water, there are many businesses that offer ash scattering services at sea, especially close to coastal areas, or you could rent a boat and do it yourself. There are also companies like EternalReefs.com that offer reef memorials so your dad's ashes can rest on the ocean floor.

• Ashes to keepsakes: If you want a keepsake of your dad, you can also turn some of his ashes into a wide variety of memorabilia, such as: diamonds (see LifeGem.com or DNA2Diamonds.com); jewelry or other handcrafted glass items (ArtFromAshes.com and Memorials.com); vinyl records (Andvinly.com); gun ammunition (MyHolySmoke.com); or an hourglass urn (InTheLightUrns.com).

Safety focus at Walker/Poor Farm Road

Funding from the High Risk Rural Road Program (HRRRP) has been awarded to the Alcona County Road Commission for limited safety improvements at the intersection of Walker Road and Poor Farm Road in Harrisville Township.

"New, high visibility signing is already in place," said Alcona County Road Commission Managing Director Jesse Campbell. "And trees that might have been obscuring the line of vision had been removed in years past, but the intersection continues to be a challenge to motorists."

Campbell attributes it to the horizontal alignment of Walker Road, which seems to lull motorists into looking past the intersection, causing them to miss the cues that they are approaching an intersection.

Short of rebuilding the entire intersection to try to change the alignment, which would be very costly, plans are to resurface the intersection with asphalt allowing for rumble strips to be added preceding the stop signs on Walker Road.

"Along with installing additional larger, higher visibility signage, and removing some trees and brush on the northeast side of the intersection, we're hopeful the repaving and the rumble strips, along with pavement markings will be enough to alert drivers to stop for the intersection," says Campbell.

The HRRRP is a set-aside provision under the federal highway transportation funding mechanism and provides special funding for projects designed to reduce the frequency and severity of collisions on certain rural roads. To meet the criteria for funding, the crash rate for fatalities and incapacitating injuries must exceed the statewide average for similarly-classed roads.

The project is expected to cost $120,000, with $108,000 being funded by the HRRRP grant. The anticipated bid letting is not until April 2018, after which the contractor and work schedule will be determined.

Questions or concerns about the proposed improvements for the Poor Farm Road/Walker Road intersection, should be directed to the Alcona County Road Commission at 301 N. Lake Street, P.O. Box 40, Lincoln, Michigan 48742, by phone at 989-736-8168 or by e-mail at roads@alconacrc.com.

News of the boys in service

April 30, 1942 ~ Monday, April 20, 1942.

Alcona County Review,
Harrisville, Michigan
Dear Editor:

I would like to thank you for sending the paper to me. It sort of keeps one in contact with the old town and its citizens. Of course I get the regular letters from home but it's impossible to get all the news that way.

Our camp is situated at the base of the Franklin range of mountains. We are some 3700 feet above sea level, and it was quite a job to get used to the climate. Our camp is a Coastal Artillery Anti-aircraft training camp. It is separated from the old Fort Bliss by some 2 or 3 miles, which is a Calvary camp

The only nearby Texas town is, about 6 miles away, El Paso, with a population of some 100,000 people. It is separated from Juarez, Mexico, by the Rio Grande river.

I have been over to Juarez a number of times. It has the Spanish influence throughout the city. Yesterday a few of us attended the widely known bull fights. Four bulls were killed. It was a great experience for us all. The fights were sponsored by the Red Cross.

I believe that it is time for me to sign off and get some sleep. We only had a 20 mile

Mikado man injured when car overturns

April 30, 1942 ~ Mikado—Earl Bissonette received severe head cuts when his automobile overturned at Coppplers' Corner south of Mikado, Sunday evening.

He was taken to Alpena Hospital by Gerson Kahn and later to the home of relatives in Alpena. Jack Frayer, a passenger, in the car escaped injury.

The car failed to make the sharp curve and landed upside down in a pond at the side of the highway.

The car was half submerged in water. Frayer broke the window of the car door and removed his companion to safety thus preventing the injured man from drowning.

The men were returning to Detroit where they have employment.

hike today with field packs. Before closing though I want to say that it pleased me greatly to see the account of the Defense Bond Sales at the Victory Dance. One of the boys in our tent said, when he noticed it in the paper, "it is nice to know that the people back home are beginning to back up our efforts and sacrifices."

Again thanks, I am
Sincerely,
Pvt. Charles A. Pizer,
Fort Bliss, Texas.

Fire destroys Spruce farm trees; burns wide area

April 30, 1942 ~ One of the worst forest fires experienced by Harrisville and Haynes Townships in many years, began at the City Dumping grounds, north of the Airport road late Thursday afternoon of last week. The fire, apparently starting from the hot sun shining through glass, swept a wide path northward, and was brought under control west of the George Holmes farm early Friday morning. A path 3/4 miles wide and approximately three miles long, was laid waste by the blaze.

The Blue Spruce farm, northwest of Harrisville, was in the path of the fire and flames shot into the air between 50 and 100 feet as the tall rows of Spruce burned. The buildings on the farm were saved.

A number of other fires were reported during the past week. A ten acre woodlot west of Hubbard Lake on the Hawes Ranch burned, a brush fire on the George Somers farm in Hawes burned over a small area. A fire south of Glennie along the AuSable river, and one south and west of Mikado burned over several acres.

By Governor Proclamation, use of fire by campers is strictly regulated to protect the tinder dry forests against fire hazards. Heavy thunder storms in some sections of northern Michigan, fell Wednesday night, although Alcona County area received little rain.

StarWatch By Gary Becker - Robotic Observatory Is Concrete

The astronomy team of the Mars Desert Research Station near Hanksville, Utah, of which I am a member, received confirmation this week that the concrete pad for the MDRS Robotic Observatory has been poured. Photos can be seen at <http://astronomy.org/StarWatch/April/index-4-17.html#4-23-17>. In addition, a check for $20,000 from the Moravian College Astronomy Account, raised through public donations, should be on its way to The Mars Society to secure Moravian's 25 percent vested share of the telescope's time. Actually, I should say telescopes' time. As discussions evolved pertaining to the use of the facility (research and astrophotography), it became obvious that the two were incompatible using one instrument. The larger of the two telescopes, a 0.36 meter (14-inch), F/10, Celestron EdgeHD, Schmidt-Cassegrain reflector named the Moravian Telescope, will be used for research. This instrument produces a relatively high magnification making its field of view small, but allowing the image scale to be larger which will show a greater amount of detail. The image scale relegates sensor parameters, such as the size of the pixels which will record the data. All of these considerations would not allow an all-in-one instrument to complete the task of research as well as astrophotography. Enter David Fisherowski, who has seeded Moravian College with several fine telescopes and mounting systems. He donated to the project a high-end Stellarvue, F/6, apochromatic (three element) refractor which is particularly well-designed for astrophotography. It will produce a smaller image scale several degrees across, perfect for producing beautiful starscapes. The two telescopes will be mounted side-by-side rather than in a more traditional piggyback arrangement to reduce stresses on the Moravian instrument. This will greatly improve its pointing accuracy. Another feature of the MDRS Robotic Observatory and Moravian Telescope is that sensors will have to determine that meteorological conditions are conducive for observing. Clouds and wind must be monitored automatically so that the equipment is not mistakenly subjected to destructive forces or precipitation. After a night of observing, a clamshell-type dome will close automatically, and a cover will be deployed over the front of the Moravian Telescope to keep its corrector plate clean. It's been an interesting learning curve to design the MDRS Robotic Observatory, but everything is coming together nicely. www.astronomy.org

Strange But True

By Samantha Weaver

- It was Miguel de Cervantes Saavedra -- widely regarded as the best writer in the Spanish language and one of the best novelists in any language -- who made the following sage observation: "No fathers or mothers think their own children ugly; and this self-deceit is yet stronger with respect to the offspring of the mind."
  - You might be surprised to learn that Princess Di was also a tap-dancer.
  - In the newly egalitarian society that emerged after the French Revolution in the 18th century, the color known as "royal blue" experienced a precipitous decline in popularity. Royalty may have been out of power, but practicality still ruled. For the most part, people didn't throw out their old clothes, or even re-dye them; to get rid of any monarchist overtones, they simply started calling the color "national blue."
  - In New Zealand, speed bumps are commonly known as "judder bars."
  - The court system in the Central African Republic is having difficulty dealing with the caseloads. One of the primary problems is witchcraft. It seems that 40 percent of all prosecutions in the nation involve some form of witchcraft, including 5 percent of all juvenile cases.
  - Those who study such things say that the koala bear has two opposable thumbs on each hand.
  - The jobs website Glassdoor has issued a report ranking the best jobs in America, with scoring determined by combining the number of job openings, salary and overall job satisfaction rating. Unsurprisingly, the list is top-heavy with engineers and analysts. At No. 4, though, is Tax Manager, with a job satisfaction score of 4 out of a possible 5.
